William Aspitte of Riverside is spending a few days with his sons, Arthur and Jack Aspitte, of Weston street.

Norman has made his last appearance in the social whirl for this season, or at least until a certain matron by the name of Curtis has had time to cool off and let her better, forgiving nature assert itself.

It happened at a dance at the club. Norman found that he had a certain dance with Mrs. Curtis. Mrs. Curtis is considerably above the average in weight. Then, too, on top of this fact, she did not dance well. Now, Norman dislikes fat women and detests to dance with poor dancers. So he proposed to Mrs. Curtis that they sit out the dance.

They were watching the other dancers, when Norman rather absently, as much to make some effort at conversation as anything, observed: "Isn't Miss Rodgers pretty?—So tall, and slender, and graceful!"

"Oh, I suppose so," Mrs. Curtis agreed, rather grudgingly.

"Then Norman realized the implied comparison and blurted out: "Oh, but I like fat women, too!"

Wishes to thank his many patrons and neighbors for their loyal support of the Little Store. He assures them it is very gratifying and hopes to continue even better service wherever possible.

DINING CAR IN TUNNEL'S DEPTH

So successful has been the application of new inventions and modern methods, that the great Florence Lake tunnel which the Southern California Edison Company is driving under the Kaiser range in the High Sierras mountains of northeastern Fresno County, will be completed one year and four months ahead of schedule time, according to a report handed President John B. Miller this morning by George C. Ward in charge of construction.
An innovation which has contributed greatly to the speed of operation is the unique dining car service provided for the tunnel workers.

A train of electric trolley cars dives into the miles of excavated tunnel at meal time bearing hot food and coffee. The men are saved the long trip to the entrance of the tunnel, and what is of more importance, the physical shock which comes from sudden exposure to the cold outside air is averted.
